

Peter Scawen

Brief CV since UCSL

I was sold or put on a free transfer to Tymshare in 1974 and spent 6 years there getting the business off the ground with help and support from Len Rawle and Peter Jones, then decided to join an old friend from IBM in a sales training consultancy before being asked to start up Information Builders in the UK which eventually 13 years later ended up with me as VP for Europe.

Split out to do some consultancy work but my heart was not in it so in 1997 I retired and got on with some of my dreams, an Archaeological dig in Israel, a 2 year assignment for the VSO, in Macedonia and then in 1999 after being bombed by NATO and attacked by Serbians decided it was time to make a strategic retreat to my last dream which was to live in France.

Now, with my wife Caroline, restoring an old French farmhouse, lots of trees, fruit, endless projects surrounded by the vineyards of the Entre Deux Mers region but peace and quiet that you cannot imagine.

I can even see the stars again.
